

be necessary to pay the interest on the outstanding bonds issued by them, under the provisions of act of 1886, chapter 55, as the same shall fall due; and in addition to the annual interest, they shall levy and collect, each and every year, the sum of one thousand dollars, and after the year nineteen hundred and one, two thousand dollars, to redeem said bonds, until they shall all be redeemed; and this money so levied shall be invested as directed by section 130, and shall not be diverted or used for any other purpose.

130. They shall invest the said amounts annually levied in the purchase of bonds issued under said act of 1886, chapter 55, or in United States bonds, or deposit the same in some interest-paying savings institution or bank, as they may deem for the best interest of the county; but they shall always purchase the bonds of the county when offered at par or a premium realized on said bonds at their sale, in preference to such other investments, commencing in the order of their maturity; and when any of said bonds shall have been purchased, they shall be destroyed by the clerk of the county commissioners, in the presence of said commissioners, and a memorandum of the fact, and the class, number and amount of said bonds shall be made on the record of proceedings of said commissioners.

131. They are authorized and empowered, provided a majority of them deem it wise and proper, to build a bridge over Transquakin river at Bestpitch Ferry landing, with a suitable draw, for the passage of boats navigating the waters of said river in said county.

Ibid.

132. If a majority of said county commissioners should decide to build or construct said bridge, they are authorized and directed to advertise at least four times in two of the newspapers of said county for sealed proposals to build or construct said bridge, and shall give the contract to the lowest responsible bidder, who shall be required to give bond and security, to be approved by them.
