

impose a tax on dogs, geese and hogs running at large in the streets, or totally prohibit the same; and may impose fines, penalties and forfeitures for the violation of their ordinances, and commit offenders to the county jail until the same be paid with costs.

1878, ch. 397.

91. They may pass such ordinances as they may deem necessary for the preservation of the health of the town, and remove all nuisances from or prohibit all business within the corporate limits thereof as shall in their opinion injuriously affect the sanitary condition thereof.

Ibid.

92. They may, as often as they may deem advisable, cause an assessment to be made of all the real and personal property within the corporate limits, by a person to be appointed and paid by them, which assessment shall not exceed the assessment of the same property for county purposes; and they may levy a tax thereon not exceeding in any one year twenty cents in the hundred dollars worth of assessable property.

Ibid.

93. Any person may appeal from the valuation of the assessor to the commissioners, who shall meet on the first Monday in June after any such assessment and remain in session as long as may be reasonable, to hear and determine such appeals, and shall give reasonable notice of any such meeting, and shall increase or abate such assessment as they shall think just.

Ibid

94. Whenever the commissioners shall levy a tax they shall cause to be made out an alphabetical list of the persons charged therewith, and shall cause to be affixed thereto the respective sums to be collected from such persons, and a warrant to the chief bailiff to collect the same.

Ibid.

95. The chief bailiff, within ten days after the receipt of such list and warrant, shall render to each person named therein an account or tax bill, showing the amount due by him, if he be a
