

of the preceding section, he shall, upon conviction thereof before some justice of the peace of said town, pay to the commissioners a fine of not less than one dollar nor more than five dollars for each offence, together with the costs of prosecution.

1876, ch. 230.

76. The compensation of said chimney sweep shall be fifteen cents for each chimney swept, to be paid by the occupier of the house to which said chimney is joined.

Ibid.

77. The commissioners are authorized and empowered to erect within said town a suitable market-house, or repair and improve the one now standing, and provide for the payment for the same, either by issuing the bonds of the town, payable as said commissioners shall determine, or by a levy upon the taxable property in said town, as they may deem proper; and they shall have full power to pass such ordinances as to them may seem best for the establishment, government and regulation of said market.

Ibid.

78. In the absence of the bailiff, they shall have power to make arrests of persons found violating the laws or ordinances of the town, and to summon witnesses and compel their attendance before a justice of the peace of the town, and to do and perform any and all duties which are now or may hereafter be imposed upon said bailiff.

Ibid.

79. They shall have full power to regulate the building of flues in the town, and may prevent by ordinance the protruding of stove pipes through the sides of houses or walls, so as to endanger property in the town.

Ibid.

80. They shall annually make out and publish, in at least two newspapers published in said town, a full, accurate and complete statement of all moneys expended by them, specifying the particular amount, to whom paid, and on what account, which said statement shall be sworn to by said commissioners before some justice of the peace of said town.
