

form the said labor; and the said supervisor shall collect and account under oath, at least once a year, and as often as may be required, to the said county commissioners, for all sums of money so collected, and shall apply the same or pay it over to the said commissioners, as they may direct.

1874, ch. 125.

119. Any person failing to obey such summons, and refusing upon such demand, to pay to the said supervisor the sum of one dollar, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon complaint made by such supervisor, shall be arrested and brought before some justice of the peace of the said county, upon a warrant to be issued by said justice, in the name of the State of Maryland therefor, and upon proof of such summons and failure to obey the same, and refusal to pay the said sum of one dollar, shall be fined one dollar and all costs of the proceedings; and the said justice, in order to enforce the collection of the said fine and costs, shall have the power to issue an execution therefor against the property of the defendant; and the party against whom any such judgment is rendered, shall stand committed to the jail until the said fine and costs are paid, the said confinement not to exceed in any one case ten days; provided, nevertheless, that the defendant shall have the privilege of an appeal to the circuit court for the county.

Ibid.

120. The road supervisor of each road district shall enroll the names of all persons in his road district, liable to service, in a book kept for that purpose; he shall also keep a separate list of those who work when ordered, and a similar list of those who fail to obey his summons; which list shall be subject to the examination of any citizen of said county when desired.

Ibid.

121. The county commissioners shall require the road supervisors appointed by them, to give bond to the State of Maryland, with good and sufficient security, to be approved by them in such sums as they may deem proper, conditioned for the faithful and diligent performance, by the said supervisors, of all the duties required of them; which said bonds may be put in suit for the use and benefit of any one suffering by reason of the neglect
