

1904, ch. 341, sec. 55 B.

65. Any person found guilty of violating any of the provisions of this article relating to culling or of violating the preceding section, and who shall have committed such offense upon the waters of the Potomac river, shall not be subject to the penalties prescribed by section 10 of the article, but in lieu thereof shall be fined not less than twenty-five dollars nor more than five hundred dollars, and shall in addition be adjudged to have the cargo of oysters found not to be within the requirements of this article relating to culling confiscated and placed back upon the bottoms from which they were taken. It shall be the duty of the inspector or other officer to have such oysters placed upon the said bottoms.

Ibid. sec. 3.

66. The provisions of sections 9, 60, 62, 64 and 65 of this article shall take effect from the date of taking effect in the State of Virginia of an act embodying the provisions of said sections as enacted by said sections, and of an act applicable to the waters of the Potomac river embodying the provisions of sections 7, 8, 10, 11 and 12 of this article, as heretofore enacted by the general assembly of Maryland; provided, that a different arrangement or form in which these provisions shall be enacted by the State of Virginia, or a difference in the penalties prescribed, except in the case of section 65, or a difference in the designation of any official charged with duty under any provision of said sections shall not be considered a failure to embody the provisions herein set forth, and upon the taking effect in the State of Virginia of the provisions herein prescribed the governor of Maryland shall issue his proclamation declaring said provisions to be effective.

1894, ch. 380, sec. 56

67. Nothing in the eight preceding sections shall be construed in any way to impair, alter or abridge any rights which either State or the citizens thereof may be entitled to, either by, through, under or against the compact entered into between the States of Maryland and Virginia on March 28, 1785, or any existing law of either of said two States.
