

cation for license, or in any report or return required to be made under this article, he shall be deemed guilty of perjury and shall be fined not less than one hundred dollars nor more than five hundred dollars, or shall be imprisoned not less than one month nor more than six months, or be both fined and imprisoned at the discretion of the court; provided, that if any person so applying for license shall prefer to do so, he may obtain the same for himself, firm or body corporate by paying therefor the sum of three hundred dollars and shall not be required to report, under oath, the number of bushels handled by him, his firm or corporation, or otherwise disclose the operations of his business.

Applegarth v. State, 89 Md. 144.

1894, ch. 380, sec. 67 A.

79. Every person or member of a firm, or member of a corporation engaged in the business of selling oysters on commission shall, on or before the first day of September, in each year, take out a license to engage in such business, by application to the clerk of the circuit court for the county in which the place of business of such applicant may be situated, or to the clerk of the court of common pleas, if the place of business of such applicant shall be in Baltimore city; and such applicant, at the time of issuing such license, shall pay the sum of twenty-five dollars; and all said money received for said license shall be paid over and accounted for by the said several clerks of courts to the comptroller of the State, to be placed to the credit of the oyster fund, as provided by section 30; and if any person, member of a firm or member of a corporation shall engage or attempt to engage in the business of selling oysters on commission without first obtaining a license, as provided in this section, he shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be fined not less than one hundred dollars nor more than one thousand dollars for each offense.

Smith v. School Commrs., 81 Md. 516.

Shucking Oysters.

1898, ch. 260, sec. 67 B.

80. All shucked oysters opened at any oyster house in this State or any other place where oysters are opened or sold as a business or delivered to proprietors of any such oyster house or other place shall be shucked by the gallon and not by the can or vessel of any other name and designation, and it shall not be lawful for the proprietor of any such place to contract