

1906, ch. 768, sec. 2.

23. Any tradesman or other person who shall, after the receipt of said notice, institute against the petitioner any action, or make any effort to collect from him any bill or charge for such goods, wares or merchandise, or work, shall be liable to an action by the petitioner for damages for the annoyance and mortification thereby inflicted.

Ibid. sec. 3.

24. In any application provided for in section 22 the wife shall be entitled to have counsel for the protection of her interests and rights, whose services shall be paid for by the petitioner to an amount to be fixed by the said court; and the wife shall have the right at any time to apply to the said court for a rescission of the said order in case the petitioner shall discontinue supplying her with reasonable necessaries or funds reasonably sufficient to purchase the same as aforesaid, and the petition, answer and all other papers filed, and all hearings and proceedings under this sub-title shall be private so far as may be lawful.

Approved April 5, 1906.
