CHAPTER 341.

AN ACT to amend and supplement an act entitled "An act to incorporate the male free school of Baltimore," passed at the December session, eighteen hundred and eight, chapter four, and subsequently amended at the January session, eighteen hundred and seventy, chapter two hundred and seventy-nine, and by certain other acts.

WHEREAS, "The trustees of the male free school and Colvin institute of Baltimore," an institution designed to furnish education to children, founded by the methodist episcopal church of Baltimore, in eighteen hundred and two, and incorporated by an act of the General Assembly, eighteen hundred and eight, chapter four, as amended and altered by the act of eighteen hundred and twenty-six, chapter nineteen, of eighteen hundred and thirty-nine, chapter one hundred and ninety-two, of eighteen hundred and forty-six, chapter one hundred and fourteen, and of eighteen hundred and seventy-two, chapter two hundred and seventy-nine, by reason of the changes that have taken place in the methods of public instruction and the extension of the public school system in Baltimore, finds its usefulness impaired and its efficiency so restricted that it is deemed desirable to change its mode of work, and to use its resources in aiding worthy and deserving girls and young women in obtaining an education at the college, known as "The trustees of the women's college of Baltimore city," a corporation established by the said methodist episcopal church in Baltimore, for the education of young women; therefore, Preamble.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland,
