Dauph: the 3d: 1692.

The said Jno: Courtnis was there, before the said Courtnis planing with the Dorman was delivering him his goods Dorman [illegible] day of the Fry: Roads & Courtnis the said Dorman that he might have his propertie noted for [illegible] to regain before he had disposed of any of them or that the Mate were gone down with the Sloop, Dorman replied why he would still secure the goods and warrant them safe for the said Courtnis to his planing answering [illegible] that the Saturday following the Deponent did desire Dorman deliver the said Courtnis [illegible] of his goods to perus who called for the particulars of the goods as they were [illegible], beginning with [illegible] Iron ware, which the said Dorman delivered and [illegible], and charged to the said Courtnis his acco: as the goods were delivered accordingly to the Invoyce. The hoes & axes being tied in bundls with Iberall Stirrop leathers & Sadles with the said Courtnis was to have his part of. the said goods many of them being marked, with the said Courtnis his mark: as they were delivered him, and they as well as the rest of the goods delivered Courtnis put by Dormans own hands in a great heap together, they often misstaun-ming taking a parcell from his part, and so proceeded to Irinings, Staffs, Silks, Hoes, Hatts & Hats & other things were the said Courtnis refusing nothing as they went through the Invoyce neither disproving the goods nor finding fault with the prices, but when they came to call for Woods, which Dorman said were all gone, Dorman broke out into a passion and said the said Courtnis pitched Pulled his goods: and swore he should not have them and put the said Courtnis to prove his bargain. The said Courtnis then told him all over the said goods which were delivered (out of Dormans book) to Sipsey for: Iberall articles before Iberall Standers &c: told him Dorman that he did depart from his bargain with the rest of the goods that was behind as farr forth as his Invoice came to: that he had no more and had given him Orders for: and did Dorman bid that he stayed them according to his bargains and further saith not.
