

preserve the Nation they founded, and we will pass on to our descendants the same democratic form of government, and the same individual liberty and freedom which always have been and, God willing, always will be the heritage of the American people.