

Not all are called to die for God and Country. But all can live, however, in the truest Loyola tradition, loyal to God, loyal to Country, loyal to those standards of morality and right-thinking, and service to fellow-man, that are your heritage, as men educated in the truths and principles imparted here and which are distinctly American and eternal.