

field 149. By the poll books at the State election, it appears that 284 persons voted, and Harris is given in the returns 154, so that Carroll's legitimate vote was 130. But the judges have given him 153, and exactly 23 pudding tickets are found among the ballots.

In the 19th ward, 4th precinct we find the Reform majority of 468 at the Municipal election, reduced to 22 at the State election, with 28 less votes at the last election. Looking for the cause of this wonderful change, we find that all the judges and clerks were removed between the two elections, and 148 unfolded tickets were counted in the returns.

In this precinct the Judges are charged by several witnesses with dropping Reform tickets outside instead of inside the ballot box, accordingly we find that the number of unfolded tickets, which must necessarily be fraudulent, is in excess of the discrepancy between the number of ballots and names on the poll books; thus showing that the Reform tickets dropped, were substituted by the unfolded Democratic tickets already in the box or placed therein, or among the ballots after the close of the polls.

That such was the mode is plainly proved by the fact, that the new judges make Carroll gain 114 over Latrobe, and Harris fall 232 behind Warfield.

In the 4th precinct, 20th ward, there is an excess of 128 ballots over names of voters on the poll books, which are in part accounted for by 7 pudding tickets, and 38 unfolded Democratic tickets. The other 86 ballots may have been put in by partisans bold enough to vote a fatter ticket than would have been required if the pudding had been used; in other words several ordinary tickets were voted in a bunch. But, however, their presence is explained, the fact that there are no names to account for them, necessarily makes them fraudulent.

In the third district, composed of the 13th, 14th, 15th, 16th, 17th and 18th wards, we find one precinct, and only one in the whole district, (the first of the 13th ward,) in which nothing wrong appears, either in documentary or oral evidence and here Harris, the Reform candidate for Governor, gains 8 votes over Warfield the Reform candidate for Mayor, and Carroll Democratic candidate for Governor, falls 9 votes behind Latrobe, Democratic candidate for Mayor, and one less vote cast at the State than at the Municipal election. The figures here prove, what the facts and circumstances of the canvass made certain, that the entire legal vote of Baltimore city was brought out at the Municipal election.

In the second precinct of the same ward, there are 640 voters recorded, but only 590 counted an elimination of 50
