

1 all the questions, but maybe give the Commission an 2 elaborate list of ten questions to indicate what is being 3 contemplated by the Committee, just to make them aware of 4 the scope.

5 THE CHAIRMAN: That really, I think, is another
6 way of putting what I was contemplating insofar as our 7 time schedule, and having there in front of them -- I
8 don't want to undertake the responsibility of doing that.
9 If the Chairman wants to do that, and I have given him 10 this list, that may be the direction he takes. At the 11 same time, he can send it back to us to do something 12 further and more specific. He might even suggest we 13 make a distribution of that list to show the scope of 14 our inquiry here. I found, in my own experience, that 15 actually, as I digest this thing more and more, it becomes 16 more complicated. It becomes really more simple insofar
17 as the problem is concerned, but the details become more 18 difficult, to say you think this, as distinguished from 19 what I think, because this and that suddenly run afoul of 20 a third factor that you find you've got to resolve the 21 inconsistency with. Then you go back and you start all
