

1 rule, as you know, defines Bar Association, and the Legis-
2 lature redefined it.

3 MR. SYKES: There is one good reason for giv-
4 ing the Legislature some say here. That is that many 5 questions of practice and procedure involve policy con-
6 siderations that are better made by the representative
7 assembly, for instance, matters of adoption law or ques-
8 tions involving venue in divorce actions and special 9 provisions where they are really more political than 10 technical even though they involve practices and procedures.
11 The Legislature has deferred in those matters, as the 12 Legislature has deferred in one instance where there
13 was a real battle, and that is where you took an appeal
14 from a Workmen's Compensation decision. They did bounce
15 the ball two or three times. There the Legislature
16 stopped and let the court have the last say.

17 JUDGE PROCTOR: You have to provide for two-18 tier rules, Court of Appeals rules, and then so far as 19 not inconsistent, for local rules.

20 MR. ENEY: To the extent permitted by the 21 general rules.
