

1 three, four, five counties, I would think, three or four
2 counties certainly, in a district.

3 MR. ENEY: Could you do it by a minimum
4 population standard?

5 JUDGE RASIN: Yes. Perhaps you could on that
6 basis.

7 MR. ENEY: What I was getting at, your objec-
8 tion to it was, instead of working out districts for the
9 State, you could say by county to county, total popula-
10 tion, which was not less than so much so that in a large
11 county, it could be counted as one?

12 JUDGE RASIN: Yes.

13 THE CHAIRMAN: One thing the State Bar was 14 quite unanimous about and that was that there should be
15 at least one resident judge in each county.

16 JUDGE RASIN: I agree.

17 THE CHAIRMAN: Your thought is that that resi-
18 dent judge would be elected not only by his county, by
19 the county residents, county voters, but by a combination
20 of counties?
