

1 MR.RAVER: Why did I bring this in, because
2 again, Mr. Case and I were talking, Mr. Sachs was there, 3 there was no record kept, we were kind of talking off the 4 record, and then I was invited to come here, but as I in-
5 dicated in my statement, Mr. Case felt there was a problem
6 of negotiations. My statement to him was that as long 7 as an estimate is involved in statutory requirements, and 8 there will always be -- you always have to estimate the 9 number of pupils, teachers or something -- as long as an 10 estimate is involved, I must, number one, agree that it is 11 subjective, and therefore it is subject to something, 12 agreement, conversation. I could not, as I got back and 13 thought it over, Dick, agree that negotiations was the 14 word, because negotiation implies you might reach an impasse
15 and then somebody decides, and if you get to that state,
16 you destroy the first statement in the first place, so 17 obviously that word, negotiations, will not go with the 18 provisions that the governor must put up the funds, so
19 this was the nearest thing. Then I learned, too, talking 20 with Dr. Zimmerman, that on at least two occasions, when 21 there was some question arose between either the governor's
