bicameralism -- we'll start off with the arguments for the 1 retention of bicameralism. 2 THE CHAIRMAN: That is on Page 3. 3 DR. MICHENER: Yes, Page 3. The arguments have been that the upper house presents a vehicle for repre-5 sentation of other interests, for the property classes, 6 and some of the material Mr. Brooks just sent out reflects 7 this; that the early senators in the State of Maryland had 8 to have 1,000 pounds and be property owners, so that they 9 would be there to prevent the popular groups, the masses 10 from overwhelming the Legislature. 11 MR. SCANLAN: Dr. Michener, has this argument 12 seriously been advanced as a justification for bicameralism 13 in 100 years? 14 DR. MICHENER: No, I don't think so, and as I 15 say -16 MR. SCANLAN: Woodrow Wilson in his book, The 17 State, in 1896, pointed out that the bicameral justifica-18 tion was not based on principle, but expedience, tempering 19 legislation. He has about just as good justification for 20 it as I have ever seen, but this argument, number one,
