

1 and they have a technical drafting before presented to 2 the legislature, so that when the legislature works on it,
3 this in itself is a second independent review and when you
4 go to a second chamber of the legislature, the argument
5 then is made that we have already had a review by the 6 specialists in the area, we've already had a review by 7 the people representing the interests of the populous, 8 and we are now having the review by a group that is nor-9 mally neither technically professional in the area nor 10 more representative of the population. So, they have 11 nothing further to contribute. So, this is a third 12 argument made by the unicameralists as to why a claimed
13 second chamber review is not appropriate or necessary
14 today.

15 There are some other points in here which are 16 relatively minor. I will skip over them, unless --

17 THE CHAIRMAN: Read perhaps the opening sen-
18 tence of these paragraphs so we have some familiarity with 19 the minor points. This is Page 8, I think.

20 DR. MICHENER: This is Page 8. The statement
21 that with a bicameral legislature -- and I turned the
