

1 Mr. Goldstein's theory is. I don't think you are really
2 going to serve any useful purpose in questioning him
3 along those lines, Phil, because I have known Mr. Gold-
4 stein now for 25 years, and I know that he doesn't change
5 when he has got his mind made up about something. He is 6 not going to change it. I think we see exactly how he 7 looks at this thing. I would think we should let it go 8 at that.

9 MR. SAYRE: I think it conceivable, though,
10 with good history that we could have a less competent 11 Comptroller than desirable, and it would damage the 12 position of the Governor, perhaps, even though they were 13 on the same ticket.

14 MR. GOLDSTEIN: I think the people of Maryland,
15 the last election proved it, they will look the situation
16 over pretty good.

17 MR. SAYRE: You are a pretty powerful man.

18 MR. GOLDSTEIN: I take the position that a man
19 aspires for the three top offices, Governor, Attorney
20 General and Comptroller General, with the present situa-
21 tion, with the newspapers, TV, Women's League of Voters,
