

1 I don't know how acceptable a comparison with 2 the city legislatures and a unicameral state legislature
3 would be as far as convincing people. This is not answer-
4 ing your question, though.

5 MR. ENEY: I was particularly thinking of 6 Maryland. As Dr. Bard mentioned, we have had the City
7 Council perhaps since the mid-20's in Baltimore City, and 8 you have counties with charter governments, all of which 9 have unicameral councils.

10 I am sitting here wondering what are the differ-
11 ences between the County Council in Montgomery County, for 12 example, and the legislature that would perhaps make uni-
13 cameralism desirable in one and not in the other?

14 THE CHAIRMAN: And we certainly want to hear
15 from Dr. Graves on this, but some of the arguments I get 16 to read would primarily be concerned with the sheer 17 geography involved and the heterogeneity of the state,
18 let us say, in relationship to that of the local unit,
19 which would tend to be more homogeneous.

20 Let's hear from Dr. Winslow on this and then 21 turn to Dr. Graves, so I will know we will deal with some
