

1 size of the legislature. You could reduce the number and 2 the size of committees. You can establish legislative 3 aids, as most of the states have done. There are a whole
4 lot of things you can do perfectly well, if you really
5 want to do them. You don't have to adopt unicameralism.

6 I don't know whether it helps or not, but it
7 certainly has seemed to, because of the Nebraska exper-
8 ience.

9 Now, I have an interesting question, I think 10 it's an interesting question with regard to this, for 11 which I don't know any answer. There is agreement that 12 this forum has worked well in Nebraska. The State may 13 be a larger area, but the population is relatively small 14 and I think probably about as homogeneous as you could 15 find in any state in the union. Now, would this work,
16 I don't know, in Pennsylvania, New York, Michigan, with a
17 greatly larger population of a highly heterogeneous sort?
18 I don't know. Actually, I would like to know.

19 I would like to see some experiments. Although 20 Senator Norris objected to the word, I would like to see 21 some experiments in other states, so that we could