

1 else, but it is in one form, in one way or other, a form
2 of home rule.

3 It does not make the definition any easier,
4 but at least it should give us a better understanding of 5 it, and I think it makes it clear that we've got to have 6 a definition to show what we are considering and is some-
7 what of the background from which we are going to come up
8 with our end product.

9 The fifth item on the list of questions is a
10 study of the various approaches to metropolitan problems
11 that can be taken in state constitutions.

12 Now, there again, what is to be understood and 13 definition is going to be important, insofar as the basis
14 upon which we are going to try and achieve the flexibility
15 and the brevity of our eventual constitutional provision.

16 We've got to go, it seems to me, even though 17 in the net result we come up with something that is quite 18 brief, it may only be one page, we have got to have gone
19 in depth before we come up with that final conclusion.
20 As we do this, we may well achieve a way in which to pro-
21 vide or write the constitutional provision that will
