

1 instance to give them the benefit of their evaluation
2 of their work, because it is the lawyers who are in 3 court and see this man in action and who have an oppor-
4 tunity to know how good a job he is doing, and so they 5 do offer professional evaluation of the judges, those 6 that are publicized and have been effective in guiding 7 the vote.

8 MR. MARTINEAU: Am I correct in saying that 9 those occasions, two occasions, I believe, in which the 10 voters have rejected a judge, have been the only two 11 occasions in which the bar has disapproved of the judge?
12 In other words, the voters have in every case followed
13 the recommendations of the bar?

14 MR. WINTERS: I believe that is true, yes.
15 The only times in which the judge did not get a favor-
16 able vote were those two instances, in which the voters
17 went along with them.

18 MRS. BOTHE: What is the composition of the 19 nominating commissions generally? Do they have a pattern
20 of lawyers predominating, do they have judges on them, 21 do they have more laymen than lawyers? What is the
