

1 the constitution?

2 MR. WINTERS: Well, I suppose it could be 3 done either way. I would be afraid if it were left to 4 statute that there might be some tampering with it some-5 time under pressure. I think it would be safer to have 6 it in the constitution.

7 THE CHAIRMAN: Mr. Winters, do you have any 8 fixed ideas as to whether or not the lawyers should out-9 number the laymen on the commission or should it be an 10 equal number or does it really make any difference, as 11 long as you have a fair representation of both groups?

12 MR. WINTERS: Well, I think I would be in-13 clined to say yes to all of those. I think that it
14 probably would not make much difference in the effect, 15 but from a public relations standpoint, I think there is 16 strong reason for having the laymen at least equal to 17 the lawyers, and I would say --

18 THE CHAIRMAN: Does that include the judge as 19 in the lawyer group?

20 MR. WINTERS: Well, no. You cannot have it
21 exactly, because it is desirable to have an odd number
