

1 details so specifically that you cannot rely on the good
2 sense and the good judgment of those who might be holding 3 public office.

4 As I look at Article 43 -- let me go back
5 just a bit. I would urge, too, that in the drafting of 6 any constitution, and I don't know of any constitutional
7 convention that has ever done this, that somewhere along 8 the line a good editor be brought into the act, someone 9 who knows how to write, who does look at this from an 10 editorial point of view, so that it is in a well-written 11 manner. I think this is very critical because this does 12 avoid some ambiguities and inconsistencies that frequent-
13 ly creep into these documents.

14 Looking at Article 43, I was quite interested
15 in this. This presumably states the purpose, the reasons 16 why we need a public school system, and I find one, to 17 me, at least, one purpose of public education conspicu-
18 ous by its absence and I would presume to suggest to 19 this Committee that consideration be given to the idea
20 of including in this section the idea that public
21 education is important in the development of effective
