

1 universities, in the state college case and the junior
2 college, I think this is a little different. The 3 opportunity to govern tends to get over to the city and 4 county there.

5 I would only say this one thing, and I hope
6 you would shoot it at me any way you wish, Dr. Bard, 7 because you know I have a very high opinion of your 8 leadership in the total effort. I believe generally 9 speaking this kind of autonomy leads to efficiency in 10 any institution, if you have responsible leadership. I
11 believe that when it is given to an institution, it 12 takes a good period of pretty careful leadership to 13 actually do all of the things that are involved in fully 14 utilizing it. I have some feeling that any move toward 15 this type of constitutional autonomy for the university
16 would inevitably lead to much more legislative autonomy
17 for other units and there may be something in the evolu-
18 tion nature which we have now lived under legislative 19 autonomy in the past ten or twelve years that might place
20 us in an unusual position to actually utilize this 21 constitutional authority.
