

1 DR. KUHN: You are getting into a pretty deep
2 subject here, Mr. Eney.

3 MR. ENEY: I indicated earlier that these are 4 things you might not want to comment upon now and might 5 later.

6 DR. KUHN: May I be facetious and say one of 7 my constituents in the University of Wisconsin used to 8 say, that is a pretty good question. Who has another 9 one?

10 I think, seriously, those who have been 11 enmeshed in attempting to meet the tremendous increase
12 in needs in public higher education have been at times
13 somewhat concerned when the State does use its tax funds 14 to support private institutions and then does not give 15 the public institutions anything like the freedom to do
16 the job with the money that it does the private insti-
17 tutions. I think maybe this is simply administration
18 talking, but it's a very unfair kind of, shall I say
19 competition.

20 There is something to be gained in public
21 higher education to have private institutions that are
