

1 Article 43. Similarly, it is my opinion that 2 Article 43 is one of the most satisfying definitions of 3 education which I have ever read in more than thirty 4 years of experience in the teaching profession. Although 5 many people will read it hurriedly and say, what does it 6 mean, there is, in my opinion, no better definition of 7 education than the first sentence of Article 43. I
8 strongly urge its retention without change.

9 Now, my good friend, Mr. Burgess was talking 10 about agriculture and I seemed to sense that maybe he 11 thought that ought to be pulled out. Agriculture is not 12 mentioned here in terms of a specific subject, other than 13 that we educate for agriculture, and I urge you to give 14 consideration to that, because it is a beautiful state-
15 ment and I think there is just as much reason for having 16 agriculture there as there is science and all the other
17 statements that have been made. So far as I am concerned,
18 I would hope you would not change it.

19 I hold strongly for the traditions and heri-20 tage which have come down to us from our forefathers and 21 believe that such statements, as Articles 36 and 43,
