

1 If that was redundant, I'm sorry, but as to carrying it
2 farther afield to a declaration of rights that the citi-
3 zens should have against the State, that is, the govern-
4 ment, the ACLU has not addressed itself to that question
5 and, since I am appearing for the ACLU, I don't think 6 that I can really respond, even as a law professor.

7 MR. GENTRY: We don't mind you talking as a
8 law professor.

9 PROFESSOR ROSEN: Well, I have a little diffi-
10 culty taking hats on and off in one spot.

11 MR. GENTRY: But you wouldn't want to see it
12 limited to simply statements that are self-executing?

13 PROFESSOR ROSEN: No, definitely not limited
14 to statements of principle and high ideal. We want an 15 enforceable document.

16 THE CHAIRMAN: You feel that the Bill of 17 Rights should be limited to restraint upon State action?

18 PROFESSOR ROSEN: I think that's the same
19 question I was just asked.

20 THE CHAIRMAN: I wanted to be a little pointed

21 PROFESSOR ROSEN: As the Federal constitutional
