

1 certainly take other things into account rather than mere 2 legal things. They take a lot of things into account in 3 making judicial decisions, and it would seem to me that 4 this would be somewhat of a guide.

5 Now, with respect to D, I would raise certain 6 questions about why you want to exclude those. Certainly 7 perhaps they ought to be rewritten, but, of course, now
8 when it comes to 11 and 12, 11 particularly, I don't 9 know if there is any particular reason --

10 MRS. FREEDLANDER: Excuse me. You say you
11 have an outline. We are not familiar with an outline 12 that you have.

13 MR. BURGESS: Well, I didn't have time to 14 prepare one for you.

15 MRS. FREEDLANDER: We thought you had some-
16 thing you got for us.

17 THE CHAIRMAN: We thought you had one.

18 MR. BURGESS: I wish I had the time. I just 19 had time to work on this today and I only have a guide
20 of my own that I am working by. What I am going by is 21 what you sent to us, this sheet, through the mail.
