

1 without changing the law, in the case of their salaries,
2 where they have any jurisdiction over and if they want to 3 pay a doorman more, if they want to put on two more doormen
4 they sit down and argue about it. They try to keep it
5 equal. They put one on the Senate and they want one in the 6 house. So, professional jealousy gets in there.

7 As a rule, they are very conservative. Now, the 8 telephone bills, that's a right tough one. I guess there
9 are more ways for using phones than anything else, but I'll 10 say our legislature, just like everybody else in the State, 11 with the exception of higher education, has been very 12 conservative. Maybe Welfare.

13 MR. BROOKS: I want to find out who actually is 14 in charge of the budget for the judiciary?

15 THE CHAIRMAN: Well, we all know that.

16 MR. RENNIE: In the judiciary, with the administra-
17 tor of the Courts, Simon Sobeloff, it has worked very well.
18 Invernizzi is a very fine person and, if anything, he's 19 tighter than I am. We're very fortunate in getting people 20 like that. I guess the Chief Judge has the authority for 21 the judiciary budget, whoever is the Chief Judge of the Court
