

1 one is going to make choices and alternatives, he has to 2 face these alternatives and the questions do not quite 3 bring out the other alternative, that we would have en-
4 larged home rule for municipalities. Understand, I am
5 not trying to answer it. I am saying somebody is going 6 to have to consider that one.

7 As a purely mechanical matter, question 3
8 really already has two parts and I should suggest that it 9 would help a little if they were given as two parts be-10 cause, after the semicolon, we are really dealing with 11 part B, but there are some other angles involved. There 12 are other alternatives that can be developed between 13 federalism on the one hand and local popular referendum 14 on the other. I haven't thought out the arrangements, but 15 we could easily think of some dovetailing and some other 16 structural arrangements which are choices to be given, and 17 I understand it is one of our functions of the Committee
18 to ask the Commission should we perhaps have several 19 alternatives in some instances written in the draft which 20 the Commission will ultimately suggest, with some possible 21 justification as well as recognition of the limitations of
