¹ Last attended November 6, 1725. It is unknown if he remained in office, but no further evidence of attendance has been found.

² Declared not qualified to stand for election, because he was undersheriff at the time the election was held. He was dismissed on October 12, 1725.

³ In the second session of the Assembly there is no mention of either committee appointment or reappointment, and in the third session the several committees were "appointed and sent out," but not relisted. It is presumed that the original committee members appointed in the first session were reappointed in both the second and third sessions. All committee members were named in the fourth session, but the worm-eaten condition of the original manuscript makes the composition of the committees of Laws, Aggrievances, and Accounts questionable. Members whose names are ascribed are assumed to have continued service in the fourth session. Those whose names are legible in the surviving portions of the manuscript are listed without an asterisk.
