3 to reform the old, or establish a new Government;
4 the doctrine of non-resistance against arbitrary power
5 and oppression is absurd, slavish and destructive of the 6 good and happiness of mankind."

7 They commend few, if any, of such provisions
8 are judicially enforceable. We felt it was not language
9 specially and peculiarly Maryland's forefathers developed 10 but was probably a justification of the revolution which 11 had occurred just prior to this. They were justifying 12 their actions in 1776.

13 MR. SCANLAN: I will vote against Mr. Case's
14 motion, not that I am against the flag waving that is 15 embraced therein, including going a step further than he,
16 the right to violent revolution as the forefathers stated
17 but I think all that exhortation should be in a preamble
18 rather than the substitute for Section 1. On that 19 ground alone, I am against it.

20 THE CHAIRMAN: To avoid that kind of dilemma, 21 let me again suggest if Mr. Case's motion embraces the
