

1 THE CHAIRMAN: Indeed they are not, but as 2 time goes on, Mr. Brooks and I are becoming more and 3 more persuaded that what is omitted from these reports
4 has at least a chance of being overlooked in the final
5 report, so the more we can get in now, the less the task
6 later on. In addition to that, we are, of course, get-7 ting to the point where we must finalize the supplemental 8 reports.

9 Mr. Martineau?

10 MR. MARTINEAU: Mr. Chairman, I think the 11 same should be done with respect to discussing the phrase,
12 Any person accused of crime, and as to just how far
13 down the totem pole that goes. I don't think we really 14 have referred that to them.

15 THE CHAIRMAN: I think perhaps, Professor Asper,
16 that this indicates what we should do is to assign one
17 of the research assistants to prepare perhaps a monograph
18 on this particular problem.

19 PROFESSOR ASPER: I thought there was some 20 question in the mind of Mrs. Bothe anyway as to whether,
21 Any person accused of crime, is a sufficient statement of
