

1 and it would be that work product primarily which would
2 be the Governor's plan. So I think there is every reason
3 to favor in this situation the Governor's plan over that 4 which might be concocted by the Legislature. The legis-
5 lative process in this whole scheme, as I visualize it,
6 was really a matter of check and balance.

7 If the Governor's plan based upon the best
8 advice he could get is really so cockeyed to the Legis-
9 lature that it isn't acceptable, then of course, the 10 Legislature could modify it, and if the Governor felt
11 strongly about it, he could veto it, and the Legislature
12 could then go ahead and pass it over his veto if it could.
13 But the whole idea of this proposal, the whole corner-
14 stone of it, namely, that if the Legislature does not go
15 then the Governor's plan does become final, the whole 16 meat of this idea is the strong executive and the advice that 17 he would get in proposing his plan in the first place.
18 Therefore, it seems to me that if the Committee proposes 19 that the plan not be subject to the Governor's veto, at 20 least as far as I am concerned, it weights down the 21 theory of the proposal.
