

1 Attorney General was correct in that, and that because
2 of the Frostburg case, which was the garment factory
3 case, that I talked to you about earlier, that he felt
4 that credit could be lent if due process would be satisfied,
5 the due process argument would be satisfied.

6 THE CHAIRMAN: Let's adjourn for lunch now.

7 DR. JENKINS: Mr. Chairman, may I have a word?
8 I am very unhappy with not getting to a vote on this. I
9 would like to explain to the Chairman I cannot be here
10 this afternoon. I think this may be of very crucial
11 importance to higher education. Could I have the unusual
12 privilege of giving the Chairman my proxy to cast my 13 vote against the twenty-five year limitation?

14 THE CHAIRMAN: In the absence of objections
15 and since you have been present throughout the discussion
16 on this, I would say that we would at the appropriate
17 time record your vote in opposition. Is there any objec-
18 tion to that procedure?

19 (There was no response.)

20 MR. HOFF: I would like to be recorded the 21 same way, because I won't be here this afternoon.
