

1 MR. SAYRE: You mean as to the authenticity
2 of the statement?

3 MR. CASE: No, of its substantive validity.

4 MR. SYRE: Wouldn't you have a running account
5 of your loan commitment? Wouldn't you have a running
6 account of your credit commitments, those that finish and 7 those that still have so many years to run and things of 8 this sort?

9 MR. CASE: Well, I would assume that that would
10 be in the books of account of the State Treasury, yes.

11 MR. SAYRE: An accurate summary would not be
12 sufficient, so that when I take a vote, I see how much
13 we've extended our credit? You see what I'm saying?

14 MR. CASE: I see what you are saying, but I'm 15 wondering whether it's quite germane to the point that 16 we're here confronted with.

17 MR. SAYRE: I'm raising that again as a possi-
18 bility of just always enabling the body to know its posi-
19 tion prior to a vote, and that that is all that is needed.

20 THE CHAIRMAN: Well, you are suggesting it,
21 I take it, as an alternative to the motion?
