

1 District regardless of how many might be qualified.
2 There would be three elected from each of the other 3 districts which might have three or more than three or 4 less than three persons who were well qualified.

5 I cite this as an illustration merely to 6 point out that the problem has no clear answer. It
7 has dilemmas and difficulties no matter which solution
8 you choose. I think we should carefully decide which 9 we want to recommend.

10 MRS. FREDLANDER: Mr. Chairman, I think 11 what you have said is applicable to the City of 12 Baltimore also. I agree with what Mr. Brooks said 13 that the caliber of people that would qualify for 14 constitutional convention is different from that who 15 may qualify for other political office. If you select 16 people from districts in Baltimore City, you run the 17 risk of two things. Either there is no one who will 18 have the time or financial means or ability or intelli-
19 gence or interest or you will have what I have already 20 gotten wind of, some of the political bosses are going
21 to put up straw men -- I heard this in the city --
