

1 THE CHAIRMAN: Pinball machines in Southern
2 Maryland might be another.

3 MR. CLAGETT: That would get it through 4 without trouble.

5 DR. BURDETTE: We could perhaps get a new 6 Constitution in a noncontroversial section if we 7 separated the controversial ones from it. But I don't 8 think we ought to prejudge this. I think we ought to 9 leave it to people like us who are in the Convention,
10 the privilege to deal with this as in their judgment
11 seems equitable. I would have faith that they would 12 not engage in sharp practice because that would be 13 self-defeating. They would try to separate the things
14 out that would not destroy the body of the Constitution.

15 MR. SAYRE: I would take the opposite
16 approach in that if there are these difficulties in 17 the Convention I assume the Convention would compromise, 18 bring out a document. If you leave it where one part 19 may be accepted and another part rejected, you don't 20 have an integrated Constitution. I think you got to 21 submit one document.
