

1 100 years, mandatory education will extend from sixteen
2 to twenty-five, it is not inconceivable, and everyone
3 will have to go to school to that point, then he would be 4 eligible and probably be a schoolboy as well.

5 MR. MILLER: You know our colleges and 6 universities have been filled with people from seventeen 7 to twenty-seven because of the distorted lives that our 8 young people are living. Do we as a State want to 9 guarantee a high school/^{education}to anybody that is reasonably
10 willing to do it or not? That is all I am trying to find 11 out.

12 MR. SCANLAN: We have not conceived that this 13 Section 2 would guarantee a high school education to every-
14 one if he was unfortunate enough to pass standard school
15 age without having achieved it.

16 MR. MILLER: What is the standard school age?

17 MRS. BOTHE: Right now, I think sixteen is 18 the limit of compulsory education and high school is the 19 limit of free education. But this may change, up or 20 down. It is conceivable that free education will be 21 universally open through the community college age in the
