not only to the citizens of the State but to those who come within the purview of the educational system. We live in a flexible society, and we felt that the General Assembly should provide educational facilities which would be a good credit to the State and a good part of the nation and not merely being there for the practical use of those who were citizens. I think you run into some -- I don't like, myself, the use of the word, citizens of the State, because it implies that the State has extra-territorial I like the word, people, because it primarily includes those who are residents of the area and those who are employed here and doesn't preclude an interest in the rest of the world, and I think in education this is important.

THE CHAIRMAN: Do not the education laws apply to aliens as well as to citizens? The present education laws, compulsory education and all the rest?

MRS. BOTHE: And if we use the word, citizens of the State, it would imply the Constitution gives no recognition to them.

MR. DELLA: You would have to change the
