

1 can be impeached and who cannot be impeached and, if they
2 don't do anything, there would be no power of impeachment.

3 THE CHAIRMAN: That's the real danger in it,
4 that unless they covered every possible office, the power
5 would disappear, but I must confess that I think even the 6 deletion of the phrase is not the complete answer to the 7 problem, unless we are sure that the power of impeachment
8 exists as to all officers, either pointed or elected. Mr.
9 Martineau?

10 MR. MARTINEAU: I just might suggest that the 11 Federal Constitution specifically says it applies to all 12 Civil officers of the United States, and we might want to 13 do the same thing.

14 DR. BARD: That would be clearer than leaving 15 it out entirely, it seems to me.

16 MR. SYKES: What Section?

17 MR. MARTINEAU: Article II, Section 4, on Page 18 121.

19 MR. BROOKS: The problem is that even so, with 20 our Civil Service types of arrangements and conglomeration
21 of positions, you still have the question of what are the
