

1 against the redundancy, but there is an intentional
2 redundancy for reasons I have stated.

3 DR. BURDETTE: You see the purpose of the 4 redundancy is to give the Legislature a hint of the in-
5 tent of the framer.

6 THE CHAIRMAN: Right.

7 DR. BURDETTE: Well, if you are just going to 8 take the redundancy in its simplest term, it says,
9 agricultural property may be put in with urban property
10 which still is possible under this arrangement, but if 11 it says no more than that, it almost says no more
12 than that to me. It doesn't quite clearly say. It says, 13 may be separate from urban property. Unless we get in 14 subclasses, but even then, I think it almost needs some 15 language as, may include separate classification of 16 property devoted to agricultural or open space usage.
17 But that is not legal language.

18 MR. SYKES: Mr. Chairman, I point out that 19 the current language of the Constitution speaks about 20 the assessment on the basis of a certain type of use, and 21 that the language I suggested would carry forward much
