

1 ture.

2 Mrs. Kostritsky?

3 I am going to assume the prerogative of call-
4 ing time on each of the three, because we said we were 5 going to adjourn at 9:30, and if we stretch it beyond,
6 we waste time.

7 MRS. KOSTRITSKY: I hope we can carry this as 8 a dialogue. I can tell you the areas of concern to the 9 City, since this is something that I am sure is of interest
10 to you at the moment. You earlier addressed yourself to 11 that matter of boundary changes, and there was an indica-
12 tion that there was a concern with the necessity for a 13 referendum, and this is the kind of compromise -- I think 14 the City itself initially took that protection on its 15 view which is exhibited by the need for a referendum by 16 saying, Well, if you are going to take part of any area
17 away and start to carve up Counties, you are going to 18 need a three-way referendum. Not only in that area that 19 is shifting are you going to need it, you can't give 20 this area the absolute veto power, you are going to need 21 that referendum if that area is going to acquire the