

1 handling interstate problems, problems of matching
2 political jurisdiction and responsibility with needs and 3 resources. Now, we really have all the material through 4 these various Reports on the Advisory Commission on 5 Intergovernmental Relations, and I don't see any better
6 way of referring back to this full subject than to refer
7 to some of these Reports.

8 Right here the criteria set out on Pages 12
9 and 14 and A-11, June 1962, I will bypass, but it
10 set forth the full line of criteria we have to consider 11 in this entire Article. Powers needed beyond ordinary 12 territorial limits encompass control over possible threat
13 to health and safety, abatement of nuisances, water 14 supply, pollution controls, master plans, regulation of 15 zoning in subdivisions, rail and mass transit, building
16 and so forth. The weakness of City-County intergovern-
17 mental agreement and single and/or multi-purpose author-
18 ities that they work only when the immediate local interest 19 of each participating unit is thought likely to be in 20 conflict with the broader area-wide interest.

21 Thus, intergovernmental agreements are not
