

1 or so great from other sources that the fear or worry
2 about the General Assembly not acting would be overcome.
3 The General Assembly would then be pushed into going
4 ahead and creating regions. Then the flexibility
5 we built into the structure of counties could be 6 applicable insofar as the structure of government
7 for those regions.

8 If the General Assembly having created the 9 regions didn't go further and provide the methods and 10 procedures by which the structure of government should 11 be handled, then would come into play concurrent action
12 of counties within a region or the petition procedure.
13 It seems to me to make a much more orderly satisfactory
14 approach to the whole problem.

15 I want to say one other thing and then I
16 will sit back and let the debate take care of itself.
17 This is apropos of the opening remarks of the Chairman.

18 As I have tried to view the work of this 19 Committee objectively and as I have had the chance of 20 contacting and getting the reaction of various persons
21 in and about the county and elsewhere, this has included
