

1 to get rid of.

2 DR. BURDETTE: I am not trying to get a long
3 document, Mr. Chairman. I am supposing what is likely 4 to happen is there would be no tight law because people 5 don't like to deal with such an improbability and the 6 law might have to be prepared after the situation arose.
7 Then it might be quite possible to get the Legislature
8 to enact a law and have somebody else limit it to two 9 tied persons considered.

10 THE CHAIRMAN: Mr. Bond.

11 MR. BOND: As a member of the Committee, I
12 was for excluding the sentence altogether. I mean
13 to have a tie vote among all the voters in Maryland, it 14 is not only remote, it is practically impossible, and we 15 are trying to have a succinct concise constitution and to 16 put a whole section in on the very unlikely and remote 17 possibility seems to me to be ridiculous.

18 MR. MARTINEAU: Wouldn't the Legislature be 19 necessarily authorized to deal with this by law, if the 20 occasion arose, without even mentioning or including 21 the language?
