PREFACE

of the Library Committee of the Maryland Historical Society, whose knowledge of Maryland history and biography has been of great assistance. I also wish to mention the constant interest and encouragement which my father has given me in undertaking and preparing this book, as well as in all of my work. To my friends who have read the book in manuscript or printed form I offer my thanks for suggestions and corrections which have done much to improve the text.

It has been an interesting experience to discover first hand the various problems of modern bookmaking as they have developed in the publication of this book. I am greatly indebted to Dr. Henry R. Evans, of Washington, who loaned me the cut of the first Georgetown newspaper and to Mr. Albert Rosenthal and the Historical Society of Pennsylvania who have permitted me to use a steel engraving of Eleazer Oswald which Mr. Rosenthal made over fifty years ago. Through the generosity of Mr. Maurice H. Annenberg, the chapter heads and initial letters are those specially made for Mr. Wroth's book. I would also acknowledge my debt to Mr. Norman T. A. Munder and to the Waverly Press for suggestions and advice on the printing of this book.

The publication of this book in its present form by the Maryland Historical Society was made possible by the generosity of Mr. Louis H. Dielman, Hon. John W. Garrett, and Dr. Joseph L. Wheeler of Baltimore and Mrs. C. Oliver Iselin and Mr. William D. Miller of Providence.

I have been particularly fortunate in having the privilege of working under Dr. Lawrence C. Wroth, Librarian of the John Carter Brown Library, and receiving from him generous help and guidance in all the problems which arose in preparing this work as a thesis in partial fulfillment of the requirements for the degree of Master of Arts at Brown University, as well as in putting it into final form for printing. Above all, he has enabled me to develop that fuller appreciation and enjoyment which comes from the handling of books, and which is the highest reward of a bibliographer.

JOSEPH TOWNE WHEELER.
