

there for a short time, for Andrew Marschalk made such a statement in a letter written in 1837, referring to a Mr. Green from Baltimore.<sup>52</sup> Correspondence with the Chancery Clerk of Adams County, Mississippi, however, has failed to reveal any information about this Henry Green; and Wheeler's statement that there is not enough evidence as yet to justify the belief that the pioneer printer at Natchez was the Henry Green of Annapolis<sup>53</sup> seems to be all there is available on the subject. His short venture in Baltimore in 1798, and the extremely problematical one in Natchez in 1800, appear to be the only attempts made by this son of a prominent printer to set up his own establishment.

Hanna printed at least one book alone, Rev. John Thayer's Discourse, Delivered at the Roman Catholic Church in Boston, on the 9th of May, 1798.<sup>54</sup> Before the end of the year, he formed a partnership with William Warner, and this firm of Warner and Hanna continued in the Baltimore publishing field for a number of years.

Warner and Hanna, "Book and Blank Printers". -

The first mention of the new firm of Warner and Hanna

52 Brigham, C.S. Bibliography of American newspapers, 1690-1820. Part V: Michigan to New Hampshire. p. 84-85.

53 Wheeler, J.T. The Maryland press, 1777-1790. p. 70.

54 Appendix A. Imprint bibliography, item 458.